Corofin Honey

Corofin, Co. Galway. JJ Higgins M: 087 9704679

My name is JJ Higgins and I had my first swarm of bees from a monk at the local monastery in 1960 and so began Corofin Apiaries. We have been keeping bees and providing honey to the local area ever since.

Connacht Pale Ale

Main Street, Cong. M: 087 776 1569

Connacht Pale Ale" brewed in the West Coast of Ireland. A beer made of a delicate blend of aromatic hops with a solid malt profile combining to create a well-rounded citrus and spicy flavour with a rich honey colour. Like many craft beers this Pale Ale was created on a small home brew kit and is now produced on a commercial level and growing in popularity throughout the west of Ireland.

Hungry Monk Café

Abbey Street, Cong

W: www.hungrymonkcong.com

T: 094 9545 842

The restaurant sits right on the border of Galway and Mayo and it is there where we source most of our produce. Locally smoked salmon from the nearby village of Cornamona, Beef and Pork from Kelly's of Newport, Coffee roasted in Westport, bottled water from the nearby hills of Tourmaceady, shellfish from Killary Harbour and fish such as Hake and Mackerel from Galway Bay. Our menus are small and uncomplicated as we can focus on keeping the food as fresh and tasty as possible. Lastly, our cafe is small and simple and we pride ourselves on giving a welcome and good old fashioned Irish hospitality to all our guests.

Ryan Food Emporium

Main Street, Cong

W: www.ryansfoodemporium.com

E: ryansfoodemporium@gmail.com

T: 094 95 46035

Ryan's Butchers was established in the early 1960's by Tom and Helen Ryan. Their passion for food and locally sourced produce has been passed on to us and we continuously strive to follow the example they have set and the Ryan name has always been synonymous with quality. Thomas and Michelle were wed in 2007. It was around this time that Michelle, who had come from a long line of quality cooks, with recipes passed down to her from both her mother and grandmother, took an interest in taking over the kitchen responsibilities. Ryan's Food Emporium opened its doors in 2010 and continues to develop its commitment to delicious, locally sourced meat and fish as well as home baked breads, including Michelle's famous Ginger Guinness Fruit Bread.
